THE VAMPIRE BALLET DANCE SCHOOL

BY JOAN MCKINLEY

DESCRIPTION OF THE SHORT HORROR STORY

This particular book is a short story centered in a town in Oregon. A motivated Ballerina takes the center stage of a ballet dance school to rehearse a long Performance that was to begin in a theatre after months of rehearsal the performance was to run in the next few months. Then only to find the three ballet dancers are everything different from lofty they are bloodthirsty clever vampires.

EXCERPT

The story leads us to a performance of trained dancers who are vampires in a ballet school. A ballerina takes the center to begin an intriguing, horror performance along with the rehearsal she must slay all three vampires at the school although she thought with no help and no weapons. The general store owners come to her rescue she is very glad to see them and begins to physically fight all three of them with the couple from the store.

CHARACTERS:

THE SMITHS – THE GENERAL STORE OWNERS

MCGUIRE RAINBOW – THE BALLERINA

MARTIN HARRIS – LEAD VAMPIRE BALLET DANCER

TAYLOR GEORGE – 2nd LEAD VAMPIRE BALLET DANCER

SMITH AL – 3rd LEAD VAMPIRE BALLET DANCER

Rainbow has a letter to open that she has been accepted as the lead ballerina at the Morgan School of Ballet in Heaven Hale a town outside of Oregon. She proceeds to drive to the school from California. When she arrived through the town she stopped at a general store Harris Martin is at the store. She asks directions the sun is not shining and it's very foggy and when it does shine it's in fog and splits in the sky. Anyway, he is on his way there. Mr. Smith tells here that he has to go behind the curtain on a shelf to get here store items a mirror is lodged there he notices no reflection from Harris Martin. He leaves the store in a big, big hurry. Rainbow McGuire is in a distance trance and daze goes with him she drives behind him in her own car.

When they arrive at the school she enters with him. They started dancing and practicing immediately at the dance school. It is a few minutes past sunset. The school is opened daily sunset until late daily only near midnight even every weekend. "How beautiful is the music," says Harris. "It's so lovely," says

Rainbow. "I am to meet George Taylor the second lead ballet dancer," say Rainbow. "I am so very enchanted to meet you," says George. "I am so very overwhelmed to meet you, I am Al Smith the third lead dancer," said Al. All three ballet dancers embraced Rainbow and danced the rest of the evening to the captivating music that was causing such a trance and a daze to the eerie really very eerie ballet dance music throughout the whole school every time they rehearsed.

After rehearsal all the dancers left the school and went home. Strange Rainbow noticed no mirrors around the wall s to practice each day. Upon getting up the next day Rainbow showered and waited for nightfall to begin rehearsal at the school. Strange none of the three dancers can ever be contacted after she leaves the school she can call them and even visit their residence outside of town. All of their houses looked horrible most frightening huge castles; Tudor style homes built recently like a century or centuries ago or built recently from the original design they were terrifying to Rainbow. It was difficult to tell she went to the recorder of deeds for that section of town and found out that all three men may be living in the original architecture.

"Anyhow, have you ever walked through the foggy graveyard dancing?" Harris Martin asked. Cold chills rained down Rainbows body. She was somewhat frighten – what a question – she froze she knew that his eyes were that of a legend although he was a real vampire. Rainbow hesitated, gathered her belonging and George and Al began with the same stare she never lead on that she knew all three were authentic vampires. The three were a dead give away of the original three vampires. It was they with their stately Tudor style castle home to be ballet dancers they were real vampire ballet dancers only how horrible how misleading and the music was tormenting for she.

The next day Rainbow strikes up a lengthy conversation about religion asking all three dancers about what were their born or conversion faiths. By the reply it was between Christian Jew and hers was Roman Catholic or belief in Temple Faiths although she stopped attending service after she was twenty one years old. She thought all through the dancing rehearsal regiment during the night as the night became late Rainbow began to feel so sleepy while resting to between rehearsal she finally asked all three men where are the mirrors all dancers practiced by. They began all three to shout obscenities and curse about being asked about the mirrors explaining nothing and their religion. She pulls the mirror from her purse and saw finally all three with no reflection what so ever. Mr. Smith from the store finally got inside the school to help. He runs into the rehearsal rooms and realizes that she knows what's going on. One doesn't even have to tell her that all three are great vampires! From centuries ago it was the original three great vampires they were exceptional then as now something to physically and mentally fight. He has a black bag and his wife has a cross and bows and arrows they work with precision. They began a fearless fight all three vampires began struggling with their teeth as long fangs to tear the blood from Rainbow and the Smiths. The fight was awesome all three of them fought the vampires. They plunged wood into their hearts just as daybreak arrived. The sun began to shine brightly at dawn.

The mummy bat removed itself from the glass case hopped out and flew changing into a very cunning, unhappy evil man. The tour is being led in the tour visitor's area they are standing looking for the mummified bat. As they walk over to the exhibit they is nothing in the case they see where it is open. Across the room it is a man changed from a bat to a man a real evil transformation. He grabs the tour guide and all the visitors none of them escape the big very evil vampire kills the entire tourist he drank all their blood gruesomely.

The museum guard alerts the curator they both take cover in a locked very double bolted door inside the museum office, built this way in case of strange happenings with exhibits out of the ordinary. They are able to ring for the city police and they arrive to the rescue. All the fury unleashed the curator and the city police are able to open the roof of the museum after fighting the mummified bat vampire man all night. They raised the petition to let in a bright spectrum of dawn sunlight. He begins to burn they think it as destroyed, as he flies through the glass ceiling.

Untrue, years later he discovered frozen inside of the Artic and is taken to a museum in France, this time. He is placed in exhibition as an attraction. This curator knows all about whom it is how it was suppose to be destroyed. It was untrue this curator knows all about whom it is how it was suppose to be destroyed. It was untrue this curator and the security guard stayed up all night with city police again, years later at this museum in France. They watched it come alive knowing the entire story of years ago in the England museum. As the night was over they fought it all night guns, knives, arrows didn't do it. They used a museum triple bolted room with a fire system, triple bolted door, and oil and a open ceiling to boil and burn it to death and by the dawn sunlight, it could not bust through the plated glass ceiling it was finally destroyed after years of trying.

THE WEREWOLVES AT THE CAMPGROUND

DESCRIPTION OF THE SHORT HORROR STORY

Two couples go on a lovely outing in nature so they thought. Camping in the forest in a trailer by the night and day campfire.

EXCERPT

Helen Pitchfork and Ralph Pitchfork and Alice Steward and Andrew Steward are scared stiff as they encounter vicious werewolves on their camping trip the daring adventure begins with killing all of them and staying alive.

CHARACTERS:

HELEN PITCHFORK AND RALPH PITCHFORK COUPLE

ALICE STEWARD AND ANDREW STEWARD COUPLE

SEVERAL WEREWOLVES

ARMY JEEPS WITH ARMY MEN

The moon is full at the campground of camp vehicles. There is an awful lot of howling noise going on. All day when we arrived through out the earlier night the sound was incredible of real werewolves we did not want to admit. All of the camper vehicles were parked in a round circle. Helen Pitchfork and Ralph Pitchfork were building a day fire to keep warm and heat coffee and cook and eat breakfast. "Helen gather some dishes, the food is almost done," said Ralph. "I will Ralph I will get them from the camp trailer," said Helen. Into noon they kept hearing howling wondering with the other couple Alice and Andrew Steward what is was. "Alice I see footprints along the ground unfamiliar," said Andrew. "What do you think they are?" Said Alice "I have no idea," said Andrew. "I do have several encyclopedias on the bookshelf inside the trailer that can identify it. "Why of course, Alice they are the exact prints of werewolf feet," said Andrew. "What do you mean Andrew?" "We are in extreme danger out here," said Alice. "We better both inform Ralph and Helen," said Andrew. "We are being surrounded by werewolves Helen and Ralph," said Alice. The night was early part put out the fire and returned to their trailers it was so foggy they couldn't ever leave the camp forest until the fog cleared to drive home. They all prepared for bed. During the whole night werewolves came around howling and growling all we heard. "Do you see all these real werewolves?" said Ralph. "We are doomed if we don't have help," said Andrew. Alice and Helen loaded up machine guns that were in a gun storage cabinet. They opened the windows to both of their trailers and opened fire it did no good. A jeep with a few other jeeps going to a nearby base on their way saw everything. They heard the machine gun fire pulled way away from the campground turned up their very high beams and overheard high beams because of the thick dense patch fog through the night. The men pulled out a wooden chest labeled very high explosives with extra power they threw them. All the werewolves were blown apart. Thanks to their lucky stars. Everyone included the army personnel were safe.
